A LITTLE IRISH COFFEE HISTORY

During WWII, for R & R, many Americans flew to Ireland in a flying boat. The sea planes landed at Foynes harbour in the Midwest. The passengers then took a cold wet ride to Shannon Airport.

Joseph Sheridan the chef at the airport at the time, came up with an idea to treat the newly arrived Americans to a little Irish hospitality with an American twist. He knew of their love for coffee, so he added whiskey to their coffee instead of the Irish way of adding it to tea. One of the pleasantly surprised soldiers asked, "Is this Brazilian coffee?" "No" was Joe's reply "That's Irish coffee". In 1942, Irish coffee was born.
